GW&K TAXABLE BOND INVESTMENT PROCESS

We believe that our multi-sector approach takes advantage of the relative valuations among distinct bond sectors and provides greater opportunities to generate income and capital appreciation, while helping to manage risk in changing economic environments.

Top-Down Macroeconomic Analysis

We conduct intensive in-house economic research, tracking numerous economic variables, to establish our outlook for the economy, the expected path of the business cycle, and the fixed income market. We also analyze Federal Reserve and real interest rates to determine expectations embedded in current prices relative to the market.

Bottom-Up Security Selection

We seek out relative value opportunities within a diverse multi-sector bond universe by combining our best top-down, thematic ideas with sound fundamental credit research. Our independent and objective research begins with screening the bond market using internal tools to assess and score credit risk and analyze the spread between a security and the US Treasury market. We then conduct intense fundamental research on the securities that pass our quantitative screens. In the corporate sector we look for companies that have a competitive advantage, a solid business model, and demonstrate the ability to generate cash to pay down debt.

Trading

Trading is an important part of our investment process as we believe we can add alpha through our experience and beneficial scale for market visibility and liquidity. Clients benefit from the deep knowledge of our trade specialists and the long-standing relationships we have built with an extensive network of over 40 brokers.

Risk Management

Risk management tools are set in place to achieve proper diversification, management of credit risk boundaries, and control of position limits for sector, quality, and issuer. Through our proprietary database, we make sure each portfolio adheres to specific guidelines set by GW&K's portfolio management team.
